WIFE DESERTER TAKEN AFTER YEAR'S CHASE

William Parker Taken in Attempt to See Baby
Born After Desertion

CAPTURED BY GREEN

Charged with having abandoned his wife and baby, whom he has never seen, William Parker, alias Frank H. Miller, living west of Grass Lake, was taken into custody Friday evening at Spring Grove, after a year's search by Sheriff Elmer Green and Asst. Sheriff Elvin Griffin. Parker disappeared a year ago. He eluded the authorities until last week when Sheriff Green and his assistant, acting on a telephone "tip" from Libertyville, took him into custody as he was lurking some distance from his wife's home.

Parker, after wandering about the country since his sudden departure a year ago, sought to see his child, born shortly after his disappearance. Several times he visited Spring Grove, Sheriff Green made three trips to the place the previous week and finally apprehended him.

"I don't know why I left," the prisoner told the two officials at Spring Grove. Friday night Parker walked considerable distance toward the home of his wife and was finally aided by an automobile from Libertyville, which carried him into Spring Grove and into the Sheriff's waiting arms.

He was taken to Waukegan, where on Saturday he was remanded under the name of William Parker, after his former wife refused to prosecute. Mrs. Parker was formerly Miss Bird Protine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Protine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Protine.

KENOSHA CO. PLANS SALEM ROAD PAVING

Completion of extension of the paving of the Geneva road beyond the Fox River bridge was given a big jolt when the county board of supervisors by close votes rejected the plan for the issuance of a bond issue to complete the highway and also voted to take the residue of the Geneva road bond fund to be used to pave a strip of road on the Antioch-Salem road rather than to continue the work on the Geneva road. The votes on the two proposals came as the culmination of several days' discussion of the road program for the county for the ensuing year.

AUCTION SALES

There will be an auction sale on the George Brown farm, located 2 1/2 miles southeast of Antioch on Hickory road, on Thursday, Dec. 14. MISS MAUDE BROGAN WEDS KENOSHA MAN ON NOVEMBER 28

A wedding of great interest to Antioch folks and to the members of the official family of the city of Kenosha took place Tuesday, Nov. 28 at St. Andrew's church in Chicago when Miss Maude Eleanor Brogan, assistant city clerk of Kenosha, became the bride of City Engineer Peter J. Hurtgen.

The wedding ceremony was read by the Rev. Joseph E. Savage, pastor of the church in the presence of a small party of friends and relatives of the contracting parties. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel Brogan of Antioch, who was maid of honor, and Mr. James F. Horan acted as best man. Father Savage, who performed the ceremony, was formerly a neighbor of the Brogan family at Antioch.

The announcement of the wedding came as a surprise to the many friends of the bride and groom as only a few of them had been advised of the plans for the marriage.

Following the ceremony at the church Mr. and Mrs. Hurtgen were guests of honor at a wedding breakfast served at the Hotel La Salle at which covers were laid for half a dozen guests. In the afternoon the bride and groom left Chicago for a short honeymoon trip. They will return to Kenosha the latter part of this week and will be at home to their friends after Christmas at the Hurtgen home, 1709 Prairie avenue.

Mr. Hurtgen served the city in the capacity of city engineer during the war and later in the capacity of superintendent of public works. On the resignation of former City Engineer B. C. Brennan, nearly a year ago, he was elected to this position. He is widely known among the engineers of the state.

SMITH - WILCOX CASE TO GO TO CIRCUIT COURT

Midnight Jury Returns a Verdict of $25 in Auto Accident

TRIAL TAKES 7 HOURS

Before a jury of six in Justice J. C. James' court Saturday evening a verdict was rendered to the effect that Harry Smith of Channel Lake must pay to the extent of $25 towards the wreck of the L. P. Wilcox automobile, which was completely demolished, according to its owner.

On the 27th of August, while taking an automobile loaded with passengers to meet the 8:39 train, the Smith and Wilcox cars collided at the base of the Stuart hill on the Channel Lake road. Wilcox claims he was on the right side of the road and was going at but a moderate rate of speed. Smith testified that the Wilcox car came over the top of the hill in a zig-zag course and the bright lights on the Wilcox car blinded him.

Smith, driving a heavier car and loaded with passengers, turned the Wilcox car at right angles with the road, while the Smith car remained in its course. Much conflicting evidence was presented by the opposing sides. Warner Douglas, testifying for Wilcox, said that some five minutes after the accident he came upon the scene, accompanied by Miss Wilcox, and that they were unable to pass on the right side of the road, indicating that Smith had trespassed upon the wrong side of the road. Numerous witnesses testified that autos passed upon both sides of the wrecked cars, indicating that the accident occurred in the center of the road. Nelson Rodellus of Channel Lake claimed he was a short distance behind the Smith car and that the Wilcox car had been moved to the side of the road before the Douglas car arrived.

Helen Jans of Evanston, a passenger in the Smith car testified that the Wilcox car came over the hill with bright lights, but thought that the cars would pass each other until, when other, the Wilcox car suddenly swerved directly in the path of the Smith car.

After a lengthy review of the facts by Atty. Fuqua of Waukegan, attorney for Wilcox, and some remarks by Atty. "Gene" Runyard, for the defense, the case was turned over to the jury at 9:00 p. m.

The jury was informed that Wilcox was demanding damages to the full extent of the auto, which he placed at approximately $350, and the judge informed the jury they must remain in seclusion until a verdict was rendered, as he would refuse a "disagree" verdict.

Walter Chinn, acting as foreman of the jury, immediately took a vote and the result showed a 4 to 2 vote for the dismissal of the case. After many confabs and numerous ballots, the count was finally placed at 5 to 1 in Smith's favor. The one vote, however, could not be overcome and at midnight a compromise was made with the "loner" whereby a fine be placed against the defendant to the amount of $25 to go toward the wrecked car.

It has been indicated the case will go to the Circuit court in Waukegan by the defendant.

The jury was composed of Chris Laursen, C. Wentworth, Frank Dibble, Fred Vonderhelt, F. Franzen and Walter Chinn, foreman.

COAL GAS GIVES KELLY FAMILY SCARE

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Kelly and Mr. George Brown were nearly overcome with coal gas Saturday night. Mr. Kelly had put up the hard coal base burner stove Saturday morning and in some way the stove leaked gas all day. He worked over the stove and by night thought the gas had all gone. Mrs. Kelly was still afraid of gas and left several of the windows open and that was all that saved them from being overcome. Mr. Brown in a couple of hours more would have been overcome. At present all are quite well.

Mass Meeting High School Auditorium Sunday, Dec. 10th 3 P. M.

"Near East Emergency Day"

Has been called for throughout the country by President Harding by his nation-wide proclamation for mass meetings to be held with the cooperation of public, church and civic authorities.

The President's appeal follows, in part:

"I am sure the people of the United States will grasp the magnitude and pathos of a situation involving the absolutely known destitution of over a million and a quarter women, children and men."

"I, therefore, request the governors, mayors, business and philanthropic organizations and all other citizens of the United States to hold this tragedy in mind during Thanksgiving week, and I appeal again to you to make a response equal to the emergency and worthy of the generous heart and the humanitarian spirit of our great republic."

In keeping with the above, and for the purpose of organizing a local relief committee, I have called for a mass meeting at the High School Auditorium next Sunday, Dec. 10, at 3 P. M. The general public, as well as representatives of all local organizations is urgently requested to attend.

FRANK R. KING,
Pres. Village of Antioch.

A Suggestion

The season of the year is now here when we all delight in bestowing suitable gifts upon our loved ones and friends. It is usually quite a task to locate and decide just what to get.

A holly-covered box of ARMOR PLATE HOSIERY is an easy and economical gift to buy, and it's always welcome.

The Ladies especially would appreciate at this time Silk and Wool or All Wool Heather Hose, also Silk Hosiery in the prevailing colors.

The ARMOR PLATE HOSIERY we carry is unexcelled in its attractive, stylish appearance. The yarns are, the best, and the dyes are absolutely fast.

Erskine Dale — Pioneer

By John Fox, Jr.

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

"Barbara would not accept your sacrifice nor would any of us, and it is only fair that I should warn you that some day, if you should change your mind, and I were no longer living, you might be too late."

"Please don't, Uncle Harry. It is done—done. Of course, it wasn't fair for me to consider Barbara alone, but she will be fair and you understand. I wish you would regard the whole matter as though I didn't exist."

"I can't do that, my boy. I am your steward and when you want anything you have only to let me know!" Erskine shook his head.

"I don't want anything—I need very little, and when I'm in the woods, as

"I'd Like to Go—to Learn to Fence." I expect to be most of the time, I need nothing at all." Colonel Dale rose.

"I wish you would go to college at Williamsburg for a year or two to better fit yourself—in case—"

"I'd like to go—to learn to fence," smiled the boy, and the colonel smiled too.

"You'll certainly need to know that, if you are going to be as reckless as you were today," Erskine's eyes darkened.

"Uncle Harry, you may think me foolish, but I don't like or trust Grey. What was he doing with those British traders out in the Northwest?—he was not buying furs. It's absurd. Why was he hand in glove with Lord Dunmore?"

"Lord Dunmore had a daughter," was the dry reply, and Erskine flung out a gesture that made words unnecessary. Colonel Dale crossed the porch and put his hand on the lad's shoulders.

"Erskine," he said, "don't worry—and don't give up hope. Be patient, wait, come back to us. Go to William and Mary. Fit yourself to be one of us in all ways. Then everything may yet come out in the only way that would be fitting and right." The boy blushed, and the colonel went on earnestly:

"I can think of nothing in the world that would make me quite so happy. 'It's no use,' the boy said tremblingly, 'but I'll never forget what you have just said as long as I live, and no matter what becomes of me, I'll love Barbara as long as I live. But, even if things were otherwise, I'd never risk making her unhappy even by trying. I can't get over my life in the woods and among the Indians. I can't explain, but I get choked and I can't breathe—such a longing for the woods comes over me and I can't help me. I must go—and nothing can hold me.'"

"Your father was that way," said Colonel Dale sadly. "You may get over it, but he never did. And it must be harder for you because of your early associations. Good night, and God bless you." And the kindly gentleman was gone.

Erskine sat where he was. The house was still and there were no noises from the horses and cattle in the barn—none from roosting peacocks, turkeys, and hens. From the far-away quarters came faintly the merry low notes of a fiddle, and farther still the song of some courting negro returning home. A drowsy bird twittered in an ancient elm at the corner of the house. The flowers drooped in the moonlight which bathed the great path, streamed across the great river, and on up to its source in the great yellow disk floating in majestic serenity high in the cloudless sky. And that path, those flowers, that house, the barn, the cattle, sheep, and hogs, those grain-fields and grassy acres, even those singing black folk, were all—all his if he but said the words. The thought was a temptation—it was a mighty wonder that such a thing could be. And that was all it was—a wonder—to him, but to them it was the world. Without it all, what would they do? Perhaps Mr. Jefferson might soon solve the problem for him. Perhaps he might not return from that wild campaign against the British and the Indians—he might get killed. And then a thought gripped him and held him fast—he need not come back. That mighty wilderness beyond the mountains was his real home—but there was his real life. He need not come back, and they would never know. Then came a thought that almost made him groan. There was a light step in the hall, and Barbara came swiftly out and dropped on the top-most step with her chin in both hands. Almost at once she seemed to feel his presence, for she turned her head quickly.

"Erskine!" As quickly he rose, embarrassed beyond speech.

"Come here! Why, you look guilty—what have you been thinking?" He was startled by her intonation, but he recovered himself swiftly.

"I suppose I will always feel guilty if I have made you unhappy."

"You haven't made me unhappy. I don't know what you have made me. You saw how I felt if you had killed him, but you don't know how I would have felt if he had killed you. I don't myself."

She began patting her hands gently and helplessly together, and again she dropped her chin into them with her eyes lifted to the moon.

"I shall be very unhappy when you are gone. I wish you were not going, but I know that you are—you can't help it." Again he was startled.

"Whenever you look at that moon over in that dark wilderness, I wish you would please think of your little cousin—will you?" She turned eagerly and he was too moved to speak—he only bowed his head as for a prayer or a benediction.

"You don't know how often our thoughts will cross, and that will be a great comfort to me. Sometimes I am afraid. There is a wild strain on my mother's side, and it is in me. Papa knows it and he is wise—so wise—I am afraid I may sometimes do something very foolish, and it won't be me at all. It will be somebody that died long ago." She put both her hands over both his and held them tight.

"I want you to make me a promise."

"Anything," said the boy huskily.

"I want you to promise me that, no matter where, no matter where you are, if I need you and send for you you will come." And Indian-like he put his forehead on both her little hands.

"Thank you. I must go now." Bewildered and dazed, the boy rose and awkwardly put out his hand.

"Kiss me good-by." She put her arms about his neck, and for the first time in his life the boy's lips met a woman's. For a moment she put her face against his and at his ear was a whisper.

"Good-by, Erskine!" And she was gone—swiftly—leaving the boy in a dizzy world of falling stars through which a white light leaped to heights his soul had never dreamed.

CHAPTER XIII

With the head of that column of stalwart backwoodsmen went Dave Yandell and Erskine Dale. A hunting party of four Shawnees heard their coming through the woods, and, lying like snakes in the undergrowth, peered out and saw them pass. Then they rose, and Crooked Lightning looked at Black Wolf and, with a grunt of angry satisfaction, led the way homeward. And to the village they bore the news that White Arrow had made good his word and, side by side with the big chief of the Long Knives, was leading a war party against his tribe and kinsmen. And Early Morn carried the news to her mother, who lay sick in a wigwam.

The miracle went swiftly, and Kaskaskia fell. Stealthily a cordon of hunters surrounded the little town. The rest stole to the walls of the fort. Lights flickered from within, the sounds of violins and dancing feet came through crevice and window. Clark's tall figure stole noiselessly into the great hall, where the Creoles were making merry and leaned silently with folded arms against the doorpost, looking on at the revels with a grave smile. The light from the torches flickered across his face, and an Indian lying on the floor sprang to his feet with a curdling war-whoop. Women screamed and men rushed toward the door. The stranger stood motionless and his grim smile was unchanged.

"Dance on!" he commanded courteously, "but remember," he added sternly, "you dance under Virginia and not Great Britain!"

There was a great noise behind him. Men dashed into the fort, and Rocheblave and his officers were prisoners. By daylight Clark had the town disarmed. The French, Clark said next day, could take the oath of allegiance to the republic, or depart with their families in peace. As for their church, he had nothing to do with their church, save to protect it from insult. So that the people who had heard terrible stories of the wild woodsmen and who expected to be killed or made slaves, joyfully became Americans. They even gave Clark a volunteer company to march with him upon Cahokia, and that village, too, soon became American. Father Gibault volunteered to go to Vincennes. Vincennes gathered in the church to hear him, and then flung the Stars and Stripes to the winds of freedom above the fort. Clark sent one captain there to take command. With a handful of hardy men who could have been controlled only by him, the countless one had conquered a land as big as any European kingdom. Now he had to govern and protect it. He had to keep loyal an alien race and hold his own against the British and numerous tribes of Indians, bloodthirsty, treacherous and deeply embittered against all Americans. He was hundreds of miles from any American troops; farther still from the seat of government, and could get no advice or help for perhaps a year.

And those Indians poured into Cahokia—a horde of them from every tribe between the Great Lakes and the Mississippi—chiefs and warriors of every importance; but not before Clark had formed and drilled four companies of volunteer Creoles.

"Watch him!" said Dave, and Erskine did, marveling at the man's knowledge of the Indian. He did not live in the fort, but always on guard, always seemingly confident, stayed openly in town while the savages, sullen and grotesque, strutted in full panoply through the struggling streets, inquisitive and insolent, their eyes burning with the lust of plunder and murder. For days he sat in the midst of the ringed warriors and listened. On the second day Erskine saw Kah-too in the throng and Crooked Lightning and Black Wolf. After dusk that day he felt the fringe of his hunting-shirt plucked, and an Indian, with face hidden in a blanket, whispered as he passed:

"Tell the big chief," he said in Shawnee, "to be on guard tomorrow night." He knew it was some kindly tribesman, and he wheeled and went to Clark, who smiled. Already the big chief had guards concealed in his little house, who seized the attacking Indians, while two minutes later the townspeople were under arms. The captives were put in irons, and Erskine saw among them the crestfallen faces of Black Wolf and Crooked Lightning. The Indians pleaded that they were trying to test the friendship of the French for Clark, but Clark, refusing all requests for their release, remained silent, haughty, indifferent, fearless. He still refused to take refuge in the fort, and called in a number of ladies and gentlemen to his house, where they danced all night amid the council-fires of the bewildered savages. Next morning he stood in the center of their ringed warriors with the tasseled shirts of his riflemen massed behind him, released the captive chiefs and handed them the bloody war belt of wampum.

"I scorn your hostility and trenchery. You deserve death, but you shall leave in safety. In three days I shall begin war on you. If you Indians do not want your women and children killed—stop killing ours. We shall see who can make that war belt the most bloody. While you have been in my camp you have had food and fire-water, but now that I have finished, you must depart speedily."

The captive chief spoke and so did old Kah-too, with his eyes fixed sadly but proudly on his adopted son. They had listened to bad birds and been led astray by the British—henceforth they would be friendly with the Americans. But Clark was not satisfied.

"I come as a warrior," he said haughtily, "I shall be a friend to the friendly. If you choose war I shall send so many warriors from the Thirteen Council-Fires that your land shall be darkened and you shall hear no sounds but that of the birds who live on blood." And then he handed forth two belts of peace and war, and they eagerly took the belt of peace. The treaty followed next day and

"Tell the Big Chief," He Said in Shawnee, "to Be on Guard Tomorrow Night."

Clark insisted that two of the prisoners be put to death; and as the two selected came forward Erskine saw Black Wolf was one. He whispered with Clark and Kah-too, and with his hand on Erskine's shoulder and heard him forgive the two and tell them to depart. And thus peace was won.

Straightaway old Kah-too pushed through the warriors and, plucking the big chief by the sleeve, pointed to Erskine.

"That is my son," he said, "and I want him to go home with me."

"He shall go," said Clark quickly, "but he shall return, whenever it pleases him, to me."

And so Erskine went forth one morning at dawn, and his coming into the Shawnee camp was like the coming of a king. Early Morn greeted him with glowing eyes, his foster-mother brought him food, looking proudly upon him, and old Kah-too harangued his braves around the council-pole, while the prophet and Crooked Lightning sulked in their tents.

NO EXPLOSIVES ON LUSITANIA

Official Report of the Vessel's Cargo Made Public by Collector of the Port.

New York, Dec. 4.—The Cunard liner Lusitania, sunk by a German submarine in 1915 off the Irish coast, carried neither guns, troops nor high explosives, but did carry 5,400 cases of ammunition, the official report of the vessel's cargo, made public by Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port at the time, shows.

The cases of ammunition, the report stated, were carried by specific permission under rulings of the Department of Commerce in force since 1911. More than a thousand lives were lost, including over a hundred Americans, when the Lusitania went down off Old Kinsale head, Ireland, six days after it had left New York.

New York, Dec. 2.—Capt. Geo. Augur, said to be the largest man in the world, died suddenly here. For several years he had toured the country with a circus. He was eight feet four inches tall and weighed 300 pounds.

THREE BILLION IN U. S. BUDGET

President Harding Submits His Appropriations to Congress for 1924.

EARLY TAX CUT IS UNLIKELY

Two-Thirds of 1924 Government Payments Are War Charges—General Federal Expenditures Return to Prewar Days.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Appropriations aggregating $3,078,040,331 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1 were proposed to congress by President Harding in the second annual federal budget. This is exclusive of the postal service and compared with actual appropriations for this fiscal year totaling $3,274,238,000.

Government expenditures for the coming fiscal year, also exclusive of the postal service, were estimated at $3,180,843,234, as compared with an estimate of $3,703,801,071 for this fiscal year and an actual outlay of $3,795,302,490 for the fiscal year ended last June 30.

The total federal revenue for 1924 was reckoned at $3,801,812,350, or an excess of $180,000,125 over projected expenditures. The estimated revenue for this fiscal year was $3,420,802,050, or $273,038,712 less than the expected outlay.

Following are the budget bureau's figures on estimated government receipts and appropriations for the fiscal year 1924 as compared with estimated receipts and actual appropriations for the present fiscal year of 1923:

SUNDAY SERVICES:

Sunday School 9:45
Morning Service 11:00
Epworth League 7:00
Evening Service 7:45

Last Sunday morning the great truth was emphasized that the only task we have is that of saving souls. The whole creation, with its billions of worlds, centers in this thing—the salvation of souls. The real objective of all history is just the salvation of souls. All the immeasurable care and effort of God in the world is for saving souls. No sacrifice is too great for God Himself to make for the salvation of souls. He will see everything else built up or thrown down for this thing—the salvation of souls. He has set us to this task—and no other. This is the only task any man ever had. It is ours to undertake nothing but what helps toward the salvation of souls. Everything which does not make for the salvation of souls must go. We must forget everything else and put away everything else, and sacrifice everything else. This is the call of God to us: Save souls at any cost.

At a meeting of the members of the church and others Sunday afternoon, committees for the revival were elected on publicity, entertainment, individual work, Cottage Prayer meetings and finance. A number of prayer lists were handed in. Twelve lists are now in hand, containing in all, the names of about seventy persons, every one of whom is now being prayed for definitely by at least two persons. Some of those on the lists are being prayed for by three or four persons.

Nothing in all the plans for the revival is more vital than the training of the Christians for efficiency in the individual work of winning souls to Christ. At seven o'clock each Wednesday evening this month this training will be given and everyone who desires to help in saving souls is urged to put aside everything else possible and be present. This is vital.

All prayer lists not yet in should be made out right away, each list to contain not less than five names. Every Christian should have such a list. Keep a copy and hand a copy to the pastor not later than next Sunday.

The specialized type of Sunday evening service is winning its way rapidly. Increased attendance and enthusiastic commendation are the sure evidences of high appreciation. The solo by Mrs. Louise Hillebrand Smart last Sunday night was received with genuine enthusiasm, and the duet by Mrs. Hughes and Mr. McGee carried its message with true effectiveness to all hearts. Next Sunday evening's program will be somewhat more elaborate than usual. It will be worth the while of all to be present. Remember the hour is 7:00.

The Methodists will be present at the Community Mass Meeting called at the High School auditorium this Sunday at 3:00 p. m., under proclamation of President Harding, called by the Mayor, for the purpose of doing our share to save the lives of a million and a quarter of people facing death in the Smyrna region.

Everybody is buying things at the bazaar in the church basement this afternoon and everybody and all his family will be there for chicken pie dinner this evening, beginning at five. Remember, the big revival begins Dec. 31, and runs three weeks.

USING COMMON SENSE

If the merchants in Antioch advertised in the newspapers of some distant big city the residents of that place could save through trading, in person or by mail, in Antioch you would say it was not good sense. You would consider that these out-of-town shoppers would have to spend money and time in making the trip; or would buy "blind" if they ordered by mail. At that, these shoppers probably could buy cheaper from our merchants whose costs of doing business are smaller. And yet it is no more foolish than for the people of Antioch to believe that they can buy cheaper by going to the expense of a trip, or buying by mail goods which they have never seen.

Commercial Club to Hold Banquet December 11th

The Lake Villa Township Commercial association banquet, to be held Monday evening, Dec. 11, promises to be the biggest event of the year in the activities of the club. An oyster supper will start at 8:30, and will be served by the ladies of the Royal Neighbors.

During the feast a radio program will be given with music from Detroit, Chicago and Milwaukee, Kansas City and St. Louis. Speakers and other entertainment will follow in the program.

The Church on the Hill LAKE VILLA

Lost, strayed or stolen—A number of people of Lake Villa and vicinity from our Sunday services. Reward for return of same next Sunday. Sunday School at 10 a. m.; Church services at 11 a. m. Subject, "A Streak of Yellow." Come, we need you. U. R.

The gathering at the Church last Saturday in the interest of the rural churches of Lake County was not as well attended as it should have been, but those who did attend gained inspiration and help. The speakers wonderful message for all. Miss Kirshner of Highland Park, gave a demonstration of what recreation can do to mean to the church, and can be used.

Leadership to Assert Itself Cooperation, Under Careful Guardianship, Spells Prosperity

What one thing won the war? It was leadership.

We in this country are not willing to admit that the weight of our army and navy did not play a large part in bringing hostilities to a close; but without the unified command we might be fighting yet.

Leadership was what won for the allies in their fight to make the world "safe for democracy." In all the world, throughout all history, there never was a bigger job than this, and the leadership of General Foch finished it.

But what has this to do with our home town? you ask.

We'll show you in just a minute. Leadership is Essential.

What mobilized all America so that it was able to put the weight of all its 110,000,000 people, of all its industries, of all its wealth and of all its natural resources behind the blow we struck for humanity?

Leadership again. What this country did in providing the world with a merchant marine, is a case in point.

If we pull in opposite directions we, 400,000,000 men, each one of whom can outwork an American, Russia has a large population, and great natural wealth, yet neither China nor Russia are prosperous. They lack real leadership.

Must Sustain Leaders.

Lake Villa must sustain its leaders if they are to guide the way during reconstruction times. When we give them the largest measure of support, for the progress of the community, we know that they are true leaders, because we had experience with their kind of leadership because it is useful, for we have seen that whatever prosperity comes to this city as a result of their effort is shared by you and me and every single individual in the community.

This is democracy in its highest form.

With the merchants of Lake Villa there is no inducement in running up a record of sales this month compared with last month, or with last year. If that were their aim, they would be unworthy of the confidence placed in them by the people of this community. Their purpose is to make Lake Villa strong and prosperous, and in the realization of this purpose you benefit as much as they. Your wants, and those of your family, must be supplied, whether you buy here or elsewhere. If you buy elsewhere, and your neighbor buys elsewhere, and your movement of money—which constitutes the life of our local business system—will be away from Lake Villa. Home trade will suffer, merchants will have come vacant, houses will be for rent, taxes will go up on your property if schools, roads and other improvements are to be maintained at the present standard.

HOW TO BOOST

The merchants of Lake Villa are here to stay. They chose to locate here because they believe in Lake Villa. They are not interested in a quick "clean-up", in running up sales records; but to grow steadily with the growth of the town. Nothing can contribute to the growth of any place like a strong mercantile backing. Nothing is asked of the merchants of Lake Villa that they are not glad to give of freely. You can help them to help the town—you can help yourself by trading at home. And the best of it is, when you keep your money at home.

"Anything To Wear" Motto of Russian Boys Who Face Death from Lack of Clothes

"Anything to wear" will be the motto of these three Russian boys during the coming winter months. Their condition is typical of that of millions of little Russian children, most of whom have come through the summer without shoes and seldom with more than two garments. And they face the prospect, according to reports which field workers of the American Relief Administration have made to Herbert Hoover, head of the organization—of being unable to go out doors to the A. R. A. kitchens which have fed them warm meals for a year or more. As fuel is almost impossible to get, most of the homes will be heatless, adding to the peril the children face, say the reports, for if they try to go out in this scanty clothing they will be exposed to illness and death from the elements.

The Russian winter is as severe as that of the northernmost United States and Canada, and this has made the problem doubly pressing, for the Russian markets have little clothing available, and the supply that is for sale is held at prices far above the reach of the average workingman. Overcoats cost more than a year's salary. Some of the organizations allied with the American Relief Administration have sent clothing for distribution in Russia, but these contributions, big as they are, have been "only a drop in the bucket."

To overcome these conditions, the American Relief Administration has initiated a Clothing Remittance system operating in every way like the now famous Hoover Food Remittance. The Clothing Remittance costs $20, and each clothing package contains sufficient material for a suit or dress and four suits of underwear for man or woman or two children. The items include 4 2-3 yards of 66-inch 20-ounce dark blue wool cloth; 4 yards of 36-inch black cotton lining; 8 yards of 27-inch flannel; 16 yards of unbleached muslin; and buttons and thread to make up the garments. When the money is received at A. R. A. headquarters, 42 Broadway, New York, delivery of packages purchased without designated consignees, will be distributed among the most needy cases, many of which are beyond description.

Delivery of clothing package is undertaken to any given address in Russia. The sender receives a direct receipt from the Russian who gets the clothing.

Words of Cheer and Comfort

If wife, mother or daughter is ill and you are obliged to be absent, what a comfort it is to talk home every evening by long distance telephone! Your own anxiety is relieved and your loved ones are cheered by the sound of your voice.

"Station-to-station" long distance service, developed recently by the Bell System, meets situations of this kind exactly. Just call your home by number and tell the operator you will talk to any one who answers.

When the call is answered, the "station-to-station" rate, which is about twenty percent lower than the "person-to-person" rate, applies. You can then talk to all the members of your family, one after another, on the one call, if you wish.

Evening rates on "station-to-station" calls, which are about one-half the day rates, become effective at 8:30 p.m. After midnight the night rate, about one-fourth the day rate, applies.

Last Sunday, the Second Sunday in Advent, all the services were as usual. Church school at 9:45, and at that time the Christmas Carols were practiced by the scholars. They were played by Miss Dorothy Roeschlein. At Morning Prayer in place of a sermon Mr. Brock read the Pastoral Letter of the House of Bishops. This letter is issued after every General Convention of the Church, and it was an outline of the conditions of the times, and the problems that are up to the Church at the present time.

Next Sunday, Church School and Morning Prayer as usual, and the Carols will be practiced again in the session of the Church School. It has been decided that the Church School will hold its regular Christmas Party on Saturday evening, Dec. 23, in the Guild hall. At that time the Carols will be sung, and the presents given out by Santa Claus as in former years. This arrangement will permit those who desire to attend the Community Christmas tree on Sunday evening.

If a priest can be procured, the Christmas Services will be held on Sunday, Dec. 24, instead of on Christmas Day itself. The Service will be Holy Communion, and every confirmed member of the Episcopal Church is expected to receive the Blessed Sacrament at Christmastime. This is the minimum of his duties. Everyone who is going to receive the Sacrament should make a careful preparation, and if he has anything that troubles him, he should come to some priest of the Church with it. We expect 82 communions made at Christmastime, as that is the number of communicants we have. Let no one fail to have Christ born in his heart as he receives the Sacrament at Christmastime. The Christmas Offerings will be devoted to current expenses and rectory fund. All who are pledged to St. Ignatius' Church are reminded that the year is almost over and all back pledges should be brought up to date as we want to start the New Year right.

More definite announcements concerning the Christmas Services be given next week.

SUNDAY SERVICES:

Sunday School
Morning Service
Young People's meeting
Evening Service

Everybody praying earnestly every day for the great revival meeting, beginning Dec. 31. Word comes from Henderson, Mich., where our evangelist, Dr. Ludgate, is now in a campaign, telling of great crowds and spiritual victories. More prayer lists are being handed in. Let all Christians write out a list of at least five names, keeping one copy and handing one copy to the pastor. Pray every day for all on your prayer list. The sooner the prayer lists get in the better.

The Sunday evening special services are becoming more highly popular each week. The music by the choir last Sunday evening could hardly be over praised. The duet by the Misses Spangard and Van Duzer was especially rich in harmony. The interpretation of "Paradise and the Port" was received with fine appreciation. Next Sunday evening will bring another program which all should hear.

The Sunday morning service was instinct with spiritual intensity and every heart felt the insistent urge of the Spirit of God to the great task of interceding in puissant prayer for the lost people of the community. This intercessory prayer was shown to be the highest type of activity known to human life.

BETTER PRICE FOR REACTORS

A check on the reacting cattle sold on the Buffalo market shows that the efforts of the packers and stockyards administration and the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture have been securing better treatment for persons who have cattle of this class to sell. Records from June 1 to September 23 show that on a total of 542 head of tuberculosis cattle the gross price paid per head was $22.17, less expenses of $3.84, making a net price of $18.33 per head. In the past, records had been kept on 4,500 head and the average price paid was only $14.30. Few buyers are now taking advantage of the farmer who is trying to clean up his herd. Many of them find that they can afford to pay as much for reactors that are not condemned as unfit for food as they can pay for untested cattle of the same kind and quality.

GREAT ROAD DEVELOPMENT IN WYOMING DURING 7 YEARS

The last seven years have been a period of great road development in the State of Wyoming, according to figures collected by the bureau of public roads of the United States department of agriculture. From 1914 to 1921 the total road mileage increased from 14,797 to 46,033 miles. This is in strong contrast to the majority of states, which have made great progress in road improvement, but with out any appreciable change in total mileage.

During the seven-year period the mileage of improved road has increased from 1,724 miles to 3,867 miles. The mileage of road is classified as follows:

Unimproved	39,373 Miles
Graded and drained	6,712 Miles
Gravel, chert, shale	413 Miles
Hard surfaced	27 Miles
In the state there is a total of 613 highway bridges.

An analysis of the figures collected by the bureau shows that there is one-half mile of road per square mile of area; that the annual road revenue is $55.32 per square mile, $116.25 per mile of road, and $27.82 per capita.

In 1921 the total road revenue, including Federal-aid funds, amounted to approximately $5,408,000, and expenditures $4,725,000. During the year 1,673 miles of improved road were completed in the state and considerable maintenance work done.

That Federal aid is playing a considerable part in road advancement in this state is shown by the fact that on August 31, 1921 miles of Federal-aid road had been completed, 421 miles were either under construction or approved for construction, and nearly $800,000 was a sizable new project.

The State system of over 3,000 miles of road to be built with Federal aid and which will form a part of the Federal-aid highway system will be definitely settled upon within a short time.

HARDING'S MESSAGE TAKES FIRM STAND FOR PROHIBITION

MANY OTHER PROBLEMS ARE MENTIONED BY PRESIDENT.

AGRICULTURAL RELIEF IS GIVEN FOREMOST PLACE

Hits at Strikes Which He Says Threaten the Welfare of the People and Menace Public Safety—To Call Conference of Governors on the Prohibition Issue.

Washington, Dec. 8.—President Harding appeared before congress with his annual message on the state of the Union. The following is a partial text of what he said:

"There never again will be precisely the old order; indeed, I know of no one who thinks it to be desirable. For out of the old order came the war itself, and the new order, established and made secure, never will permit its recurrence."

"It is no figure of speech to say we have come to the test of our civilization. The world has been passing—is today passing—through a great crisis. The conduct of war itself is not more difficult than the solution of the problems which necessarily follow."

Considers Home Problems.
"I am not speaking at this moment of the problem in its wider aspects of world rehabilitation or of international relationships. The reference is to our own social, financial and economic problems at home. These things are not to be considered solely as problems apart from all international relationship, but every nation must be able to carry on for itself, else its international relationship will have scant importance."

"Doubtless our own people have emerged from the World War tumult less impaired than most belligerent powers; probably we have made larger progress toward reconstruction. Had we escaped the coal and railway strikes, which had no excuse for their beginning, and less justification for their delayed settlement, we should have done infinitely better. But labor was insistent on holding to the war heights, and heedless forces of reaction sought the prewar levels, and both were wrong."

"The railway strike accentuated the difficulty of the American farmer. The first distress of readjustment came to the farmer, and it will not be a readjustment fit to abide until he is relieved. The distress brought to the farmer does not affect him alone. Agricultural ill fortune is a national ill fortune."

Saved From Disaster.
This congress already has taken cognizance of the misfortune which precipitate deflation brought to American agriculture. Your measures of relief and the reduction of the federal reserve discount rate undoubtedly saved the country from widespread disaster. The very proof of helpfulness already given is the strongest argument for the permanent establishment of widened credits, heretofore temporarily extended through the war finance corporation."

"The farm loan bureau, which already has proved its usefulness through the federal land banks, may well have its powers enlarged to provide ample farm production credits as well as enlarged land credits."

"In the last half of the year now closing the railways, broken in carrying capacity because of motive power and rolling stock out of order, though insistent declaring to the contrary, embargoed the farmer's shipments, or denied him cars when fortunate markets were calling."

Rail Problem Vital.
"I know of no problem exceeding in importance this one of transportation. . . . We have built 40 per cent of the world's railroad mileage, and yet find it inadequate to our present requirements. When we contemplate the inadequacy of today, it is easy to believe that the next few decades will witness the paralysis of our transportation-using social scheme or a complete reorganization on some new basis."

"Manifestly, we have need to begin on plans to co-ordinate all transportation facilities. We should more effectively connect up our rail lines with our carriers by sea. We ought to reap some benefit from the hundreds of millions expended on inland waterways, providing our capacity to utilize as well as expend. We ought to turn the motortruck into a railway feeder and distributor instead of a destroying competitor."

"This transportation problem cannot be waved aside. The demand for lowered costs on farm products and basic materials cannot be ignored. Rates horizontally increased to meet increased wage outlays during the war inflation are not easily reduced. When some very moderate wage reductions were effected last summer there was a 5 per cent horizontal reduction in rates. I sought at that time, in a very informal way, to have the railway managers to go before the interstate commerce commission and agree to a heavier reduction on farm products and coal and other basic commodities and leave unchanged the freight tariffs which a very large portion of the traffic was able to bear. Neither the managers nor the commission saw fit to adopt the suggestion. Railways are not expected to render the most essential service in our social organization without a fair return on capital invested, but the government has gone so far in the regulation of rates and rules of operation that it has the responsibility of pointing the way to the reduced freight costs so essential to our national welfare. Government operation does not afford the cure."

"The labor board itself is not so constituted as best to serve the public interest. With six partisan members on a board of nine, three partisans nominated by the employees and three by the railway managers, it is inevitable that the partisan viewpoint is maintained throughout hearings and in decisions handed down. . . . I am well convinced that the functions of this tribunal could be much better carried on here in Washington."

Offers New Plan.

"The substitution of a labor division in the interstate commerce commission made up from its membership to hear and decide disputes relating to wages and working conditions which have failed of adjustment by proper committees created by the railways and their employees, offers a more effective plan."

"This suggested substitution will involve a necessary increase in the membership of the commission, probably four, to constitute the labor division. If the suggestion appeals to the congress, it will be well to specify that the labor division shall be constituted of representatives of the four rate-making territories, thereby assuring a tribunal conversant with the conditions which obtain in the different rate-making sections of the country."

Most Demoralizing Factor.

"Constitutional prohibition has been adopted by the nation. It is the supreme law of the land. In plain speaking, there are conditions relating to its enforcement which savor of nation-wide scandal. It is the most demoralizing factor in our public life."

"Most of our people assumed that the adoption of the eighteenth amendment meant the elimination of the question from our politics. On the contrary, it has been so intensified as an issue that many voters are disposed to make all political decisions with reference to this single question. It is distracting the public mind and prejudicing the judgment of the electorate."

"The day is unlikely to come when the eighteenth amendment will be repealed. The fact may as well be recognized and our course adapted accordingly. If the statutory provisions for its enforcement are contrary to deliberate public opinion, which, I do not believe, the rigorous and literal enforcement will concentrate public attention on any requisite modification."

"Such a course conforms with the law and saves the humiliation of our people before the world, and challenges the destructive forces engaged in widespread violation, official corruption, and individual demoralization."

Plans Governors' Meet.

"The eighteenth amendment involves the concurrent authority of state and federal governments for the enforcement of the policy it defines. A certain lack of definiteness, through division of responsibility is thus introduced. In order to bring about a full understanding of duties and responsibilities, as thus distributed, I purpose to invite the governors of the states and territories, at an early opportunity, to a conference with the federal executive authority. Out of the full and free considerations which will thus be possible, it is confidently believed will emerge a more adequate comprehension of the whole problem, and definite policies of national and state co-operation in administering the laws."

"There are pending bills for the registration of the alien who has come to our shores. I wish the passage of such an act might be expedited. . . . Before enlarging the immigration quota, we had better provide registration for aliens, now here or continuing pressing for admission, and establish our examination boards abroad, to make sure of desirables only."

Wants to Be Prepared.

"The proposed survey of a plan to draft all the resources of the republic, human and material, for national defense may well have your approval. I commended such a program in case of future war, in the inaugural address of March 4, 1921, and every experience in the adjustment and liquidation of war claims and the settlement of war obligations persuades me we ought to be prepared for such universal call to armed defense."

Dry Yuletide for New York.

New York.—In preparation for the most drastic enforcement of the state prohibition law in white light cabarets, restaurants and dance halls around the holiday season, order, to "dry up Broadway" were received by commanders of the two tenderloin police stations, with instructions that every patrolman would be held accountable for hip-pocket violations as well.

Federal authorities also have planned an active campaign in co-operation with the police, it was said.

Business Conference at Chicago.

Washington.—Another of the bureau of educational regional conferences on the co-ordination of business and education will be held December 26 at Chicago. It is announced, with representative middle western business men and teachers of business subjects in attendance. The speakers include M. E. Hotchkiss, director of the National Industrial Clothing Manufacturers of Chicago, and G. F. Gephart of the First National bank of St. Louis, with others of prominence.

DYED HER BABY'S COAT, A SKIRT AND CURTAINS WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.—Advertisement.

Cause of Effusive Gratitude.

"Well, think the Lord, I never spent five or six of the best years of my life foolin' round no college," said the money-wealthy man.

"Might I understand you," said the thoughtful-looking listener, "to thank the Lord for your ignorance?"

"You may put it that way if it suits you any better," snapped the money-wealthy man.

"Then," said the thoughtful-looking listener, "Thanksgiving day ought to list at least a week at your house."—Farm Life.

Rural Doctors Serve Most Patients.

The average country doctor in Ohio serves twice as many patients as does his city colleague, an investigation by the Ohio State university has revealed. It is stated that in the remote country districts there are plenty of country doctors to take care of patients, but that, in the regions near a larger city the physician often forsakes his rural practice for the broader opportunities of the city. In the 15 Ohio counties that have the largest urban population, every rural doctor now has to take care of an average of 1,512 persons. In the 15 counties of the state which are most thoroughly rural there is one physician for every 887 persons.

Grass Lake School

MARIE ROTHERS, Editor
Ice skating is very good on the lakes. Fourteen children were skating on Bluff lake Sunday.

Louis Forbrich says the ice is about 3 to 4 inches thick.

Peter Waldweller was quite unlucky Sunday. While skating, the ice broke and he went in up to his hips. He suffered no injury.

Fourteen children of this school surprised Peter Waldweller Saturday evening at 7:30. They played bunco and Clara Michell received the girls' first prize. James Klein received the boys' first prize. Marie Rother and Lester Trieger won the booby prizes.

Refreshments were served and game were played. At 11 o'clock everyone went home saying they had a good time.

James Klein of Chicago was at the party.

The children drew names today (Monday) to see to whom they should give presents.

Mrs. Stanton is helping some of the children to paint water color pictures for Xmas presents.

We are not going to have a regular Christmas entertainment this year, but Mrs. C. E. Herman has given us a tree which we will decorate and presents will be distributed to the children.

MICKIE SAYS

ONE THING ABOUT THE SMALL NEWSPAPER THESE DAYS IS THAT IT'S CLEAN AND CAN BE READ BY EVERY MEMBER OF THE FAMILY, WHILE THE CITY PAPERS ARE FILLED WITH CRIME AND SCANDAL! THEY SURE AIN'T FIT FOR US KIDS TO READ!

NEW VARIETY TAKING PLACE OF DISEASE-AFFECTED CANE

Five years ago the sugar plantations of Porto Rico were threatened with disaster because of the sudden appearance and the rapid spread of a serious disease known as yellow stripe, or mosaic disease, and the planters appealed to the United States department of agriculture for help.

Investigators sent to the island by the bureau of plant industry to cooperate with the insular and federal experiment stations there soon discovered that a variety of cane known as Kavangire then being grown only in experimental plants, seemed to be immune to the disease, which was attacking practically every other variety grown in Porto Rico.

Kavangire cane is grown commercially in the Argentine, and through the effective cooperation of the director of the Tucuman agricultural experiment station the department made arrangements for an immediate shipment of 5 tons of seed cane of that variety to Porto Rico. The cane was packed in charcoal in barrels and shipped about the middle of July, 1919, arriving on the island early in September. This is probably the longest haul of seed cane in large quantity ever made.

The immune cane was grown by the federal and insular experiment stations for the purpose of increasing the quantity of seed cane. Later this was distributed to each of the central on the island, and a recent report shows that it has been giving very good results. One of the stations had 500 acres of Kavangire this year and is planning to increase to 1,000 acres next year. Another has 200 acres in one valley and considerable plantings in other districts. About half of the cane acreage in this locality is now out of cane because of the mosaic disease and only the new variety will be planted hereafter.

distant when the Marketing Company will not only be able to pay the farmer in the country the same price that the other dealers are paying, but unquestionably is going to develop the business to a point that the Marketing Company will be able to pay more money for the milk that it buys than the dealers are paying.

Suppose, for instance, that this business should grow to a point that the Marketing Company was doing even 5 percent of the bottle milk business of the city by this method. In round figures, about 1,000,000 quarts of milk per day in Chicago are supposed to be sold in bottles. Suppose the Marketing Company is able to develop this to a point that 5 percent of the business is handled by the Marketing Company in this way, or 50,000 quarts a day, at 5 cents a quart for handling it. This would give the Marketing Company $2,500 a day to pay the freight, bottle and deliver this milk. These figures speak for themselves and unquestionably mean that the further development of this store business means not only more milk used in the city but a better price to the farmer.

Dealers Fear Company.

When this business first started, the dealers paid little attention to it, but as it has steadily grown the dealers suddenly awakened to the danger of it and let out a piercing squawk, for all too plainly they realized that before many moons the bottle milk business of the Marketing Company, if it keeps up its present rate of growth, is surely going to place the company in a position to be a dangerous factor in this market; that the Company will not only be able to pay the full price that the dealers are paying but unquestionably a better price. Ah! there's the rub. Every good thing has to have its start, every successful enterprise has to go through the trying period of making a start. Consequently, in the start off of this business, as long as the dealers knew that the overhead plant expense of handling and delivering a small volume prevented the company from being able to pay as much for milk as the dealers were paying, they, the dealers, rested happy.

Poison Squad in Action.

However, the constant growth of this business is giving the dealers some uneasy moments, feeling that they have already let it go too far, and failing to kill it at this end, they are now trying other tactics. Consequently, the dealers squawk and the poison squad welded into action on the double quick. Why?

Dear reader, this is all there is to this great hubbub and noise about 10-cent milk. Nothing so very bad about it after all, is there?

Along with the squawk about 10-cent milk goes those other dismal tales about the price slashing, etc., that the Marketing Company is doing in the price of wholesale milk in Chicago to the restaurants, hotels, etc., this latter story is just as much of a fake, just as has been all this bosh about 10-cent milk.

The story of what the Marketing Company has done in securing steady wholesale business in the loop dis-

ERSKINE DALE—PIONEER

By JOHN FOX, Jr.

"My son spoke words of truth," he proclaimed sonorously. "He warned us against the king over the waters and told us to make friends with the Americans. We did not heed his words, and so he brought the great chief of the Long Knives, who stood without fear among warriors more numerous than leaves and spoke the same words to all. We are friends of the Long Knives. My son is the true prophet. Bring out the false one and Crooked Lightning and Black Wolf, whose life my son saved though the two were enemies. My son shall do with them as he pleases."

Many young braves sprang willingly forward and the three were haled before Erskine. Old Kah-too waved his hand toward them and sat down. Erskine rose and fixed his eyes sternly on the cowering prophet:

"He shall go forth from the village and shall never return. For his words work mischief, he does foolish things, and his drumming frightens the game. He is a false prophet and he must go." He turned to Crooked Lightning:

"The Indians have made peace with the Long Knives and White Arrow would make peace with any Indian, though an enemy. Crooked Lightning shall go or stay, as he pleases. Black Wolf shall stay, for the tribe will need him as a hunter and a warrior against the English foes of the Long Knives. White Arrow does not ask another to spare an enemy's life and then take it away himself."

The braves grunted approval. Black Wolf and Crooked Lightning averted their faces and the prophet shambled unsteadily away. Again old Kah-too proclaimed sonorously, "It is well!" and went back with Erskine to his tent. There he sank wearily on a buffalo-skin and pleaded with the boy to stay with them as chief in his stead. He was very old, and now that peace was made with the Long Knives he was willing to die. If Erskine would but give his promise, he would never rise again from where he lay.

Erskine shook his head and the old man sorrowfully turned his face. And yet Erskine lingered on and on at the village. Of the white woman he had learned little other than that she had been bought from another tribe and adopted by old Kah-too; but it was plain that since the threatened burning of her she had been held in high respect by the whole tribe. He began to wonder about her and whether she might not wish to go back to her own people. He had never talked with her, but he never moved about the camp that he did not feel her eyes upon him. And Early Morn's big soft eyes, too, never seemed to leave him. She brought him food, she sat at the door of his tent, she followed him about the village and bore herself openly as his slave. At last old Kah-too, who would not give up his great hope, pleaded with him to marry her, and while he was talking the girl stood at the door of the tent and interrupted them. Her mother's eyes were growing dim, she said. Her mother wanted to talk with White Arrow and look upon his face before her sight should altogether pass. Nor could Erskine know that the white woman wanted to look into the eyes of the man she hoped would become her daughter's husband, but Kah-too did, and he bade Erskine go. His foster mother, coming upon the scene, scowled, but Erskine rose and went to the white woman's tent. She sat just inside the opening, with a blanket across the lower half of her face, nor did she look at him. Instead she plied him with questions, and drew from him every detail of his life as far back as he could remember. Poor soul, it was the first opportunity for many years that she had had to talk with any white person who had been in the eastern world, and freely and frankly he held nothing back.

All the while the girl had crouched near, looking at Erskine with doglike eyes, and when he rose to go the woman dropped the blanket from her face and got to her feet. Shyly she lifted her hands, took his face between them, bent close, and studied it searchingly:

"What is your name?"
"Erskine Dale."
Without a word she turned back into her tent.

At dusk Erskine stood by the river's brim, with his eyes lifted to a rising moon and his thoughts with Barbara on the bank of the James. Behind him he heard a rustle and, turning, he saw the girl, her breast throbbing and her eyes burning with a light he had never seen before.

"Black Wolf will kill you," she whispered. "Black Wolf wants Early Morn and he knows that Early Morn wants White Arrow." Erskine put both hands on her shoulders and looked down into her eyes. She trembled, and when his arms went about her she surged closer to him and the touch of her warm, supple body went through him like fire. And then with a triumphant smile she sprang back.

"Black Wolf will see," she whispered, and fled. Erskine sank to the ground, with his head in his hands. The girl ran back to her tent, and the mother, peering at the flushed face and shining eyes, clove to the truth. She said nothing, but when the girl was asleep and faintly smiling, the white woman sat staring out into the moonlit woods, softly beating her breast.

CHAPTER XIV.

Erskine had given Black Wolf his life, and the young brave had accepted the debt and fretted under it sorely. And when Erskine had begun to show some heed to Early Morn a fierce jealousy seized the savage, and his old hatred was reborn a thousandfold more strong—and that, too, Erskine now knew. Meantime a low and a hunting party went abroad. Game was scarce and only after the second day was there a kill. Erskine had sighted a huge buck, had fired quickly and at close range. Wounded, the buck had charged, Erskine's knife was twisted in his belt, and the buck was upon him before he could get it out. He tried to dart for a tree, stumbled, turned, and caught the infuriated beast by the horns. He uttered no cry, but the angry bellow of the stag reached the ears of Black Wolf through the woods, and he darted toward the sound. And he came none too soon. Erskine heard the crack of a rifle, the stag toppled over, and he saw Black Wolf standing over him with a curiously triumphant look on his saturnine face. In Erskine, when he rose, the white man was predominant, and he thrust out his hand, but Black Wolf ignored it.

"White Arrow gave Black Wolf his life. The debt is paid."

Erskine looked at his enemy, nodded, and the two bore the stag away. Instantly a marked change was plain in Black Wolf. He told the story of the fight with the buck to all. Boldly he threw off the mantle of shame, stalked haughtily through the village, and went back to open enmity with Erskine. At dusk a day or two later, when he was coming down the path from the white woman's wigwam, Black Wolf confronted him, scowling.

Erskine Put Both Hands on Her Shoulders and Looked Down into Her Eyes.

"Early Morn shall belong to Black Wolf," he said insolently. Erskine met his baleful, half-drunken eyes scornfully.

"We will leave that to Early Morn," he said coolly, and then thundered suddenly:

"Out of my way!"
Black Wolf hesitated and gave way, but ever thereafter Erskine was on guard.

In the white woman, too, Erskine now saw a change. Once she had encouraged him to stay with the Indians; now she lost no opportunity to urge against it. She had heard that Hamilton would try to retake Vincennes, that he was forming a great force with which to march south, sweep through Kentucky, batter down the wooden forts, and force the Kentuckians behind the great mountain wall. Erskine would be needed by the whites, who would never understand or trust him if he should stay with the Indians. All this she spoke one day when Erskine came to her tent to talk. Her face had blanched, she had argued passionately that he must go, and Erskine was sorely puzzled. The girl, too, had grown rebellious and disobedient, for the change in her mother was plain also to her, and she could not understand. Moreover Erskine's stubbornness grew, and he began to flame within at the stalling insolence of Black Wolf, who slipped through the shadows of day and the dusk to spy on the two where-ever they came together. And one day when the sun was midway, and in the open of the village, the clash came. Black Wolf darted forth from his wigwam, his eyes bloodshot with rage and drink, and his hunting knife in his hand. A cry from Early Morn warned Erskine and he wheeled. As Black Wolf made a vicious slash at him he sprang aside, and with his fist caught the savage in the jaw. Black Wolf fell heavily and Erskine was upon him with his own knife at his enemy's throat.

"Stop them!" old Kah-too cried sternly, but it was the terrified shriek of the white woman that stayed Erskine's hand. Two young braves disarmed the fallen Indian, and Kah-too looked inquiringly at his adopted son.

"Turn him loose!" Erskine scorned. "I have no fear of him. He is a woman and drunk, but next time I shall kill him."

The white woman had run down, caught Early Morn, and was leading her back to her tent. From inside presently came low, passionate pleading from the woman and an occasional sob from the girl. And when an hour later, at dusk, Erskine turned upward toward the tent, the girl gave a horrified cry, flashed from the tent, and darted for the high cliff over the river.

"Catch her!" cried the mother. "Quick!" Erskine fled after her, overtook her with her hands upraised for the plunge on the very edge of the cliff, and half carried her, struggling and sobbing, back to the tent. Within the girl dropped in a weeping heap, and with her face covered, and the woman turned to Erskine, agonized.

"I told her," she whispered, "and she was going to kill herself. You are my son!"

Still sleepless at dawn, the boy rode firely into the woods. At sunset he came in, grunt with brooding and hunger. His foster mother brought him food, but he would not touch it. The Indian woman stared at him with keen suspicion, and presently old Kah-too, passing slowly, bent on him the same look, but asked no question. Erskine gave no heed to either, but his mother, watching from her wigwam, understood and grew fearful. Quickly she stepped outside and called him, and he rose and went to her bewildered; she was smiling.

"They are watching," she said, and Erskine, too, understood, and kept his back toward the watchers.

"I have decided," he said. "You and she must leave here and go with me."

His mother pretended much displeasure. "She will not leave, and I will not leave her"—her lips trembled—"and I would have gone long ago but—"

"I understand," interrupted Erskine, "but you will go now with your son. The poor woman had to scowl.

"No, and you must not tell them. They will never let me go, and they will use me to keep you here. You must go at once. She will never leave this tent as long as you are here, and if you stay she will die, or kill herself. Some day—"

She turned abruptly and went back into her tent. Erskine wheeled and went to old Kah-too.

"You want Early Morn?" asked the old man. "You shall have her."

"No," said the boy, "I am going back to the big chief."

"You are my son and I am old and weak."

"I am a soldier and must obey the big chief's commands, as must you."

"I shall live," said the old man wearily, "until you come again."

Erskine nodded and went for his horse. Black Wolf watched him with malignant satisfaction, but said nothing—nor did Crooked Lightning. Erskine turned once as he rode away. His mother was standing outside her wigwam. Mournfully she waved her hand. Behind her and within the tent he could see Early Morn with both hands at her breast.

CHAPTER XV

Dawned 1781.
The war was coming into Virginia at last. Virginia falling would thrust a great wedge through the center of the confederacy, feed the British armies and end the fight. Cornwallis was to drive the wedge, and never had the opening seemed easier. Virginia was drained of her fighting men, and south of the mountains was protected only by a militia, for the most part, of old men and boys. North and south ran despair. The soldiers had no pay, little food, and only old worn-out coats, tattered linen overalls, and one blanket between three men, to protect them from drifting snow and icy wind. Even the great Washington was near despair, and in foreign help his sole hope lay. Already the traitor, Arnold, had taken Richmond, burned warehouses, and returned, but little harassed, to Portsmouth.

Cornwallis was coming on. Tarleton's white rangers were bedeviling the land, and it was at this time that Erskine Dale once more rode firely to the river James.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription. Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper—Advertisement.

Big City Buying, Instead of Home Trading, Helps Big City Merchants' Rentals

"Twenty-nine steps from the high-rent district."

This identical slogan is well known to readers of the display advertisements in the papers published in a certain large city in this country. In substance it is well known to the readers of the advertisements in any large city, because the closer a store is to the center of congestion in that city the greater is its overhead.

Taken inversely, it is also true that as the site is at some distance from that center, the lower is its overhead, others things being equal.

The rule works out with such exactness that the rise or fall in this overhead can be calculated with every pace of that distance, as the advertiser mentioned in the foregoing has demonstrated.

Where many persons are crowded together, the cost of living is forced up as a result. The greater the congestion, the higher the cost. To relieve this congestion and make it possible for the man with a moderate income to live in comfort and to provide for his family adequately, there is a centrifugal movement in every large city from the downtown section to the suburbs. On a larger scale, but for the same end, there is the movement from city to country—"back to the farm," or to the small town.

Damage is Averted.
The balance is restored by the time the movement has continued for some time from the big city to, say Antioch. It is like a lightning rod that draws from the clouds the charge of high voltage and so keeps the storm clouds from storing up a force that might hurl a bolt earthward and wreak great destruction.

It costs a huge sum to run a store on a desirable downtown corner in a large city, and the cost for the extra charge is assessed upon every person buying goods there. The site on which the famous Flatiron building in New York is located is a good example of this. Everybody wants that corner, and the competition for its possession has raised the price to a fabulous sum. In the same way many a store site in a big city is inflated in price until it is assessed several times its real value, but taxes must be paid on it, inflated value and all. Every dollar's worth of goods sold must pay tribute toward these taxes.

And you—people of Antioch—are helping to pay this tribute every time you buy at such a store.

But higher taxes aren't all that your money is wasted for. There is the higher rent. The owner of the property, who is assessed this high tax, has more money invested than the man in the next block further uptown, and he wants his interest back on that investment. He screws up the rent in a direct ratio.

Thickly Built District.
The district is thickly built up. Story upon story are added to each building until they constitute a wilderness of skyscrapers. The fire hazard increases with every floor. Insurance rates soar with the high cost of everything else. Other items of this sort might be added almost indefinitely, for all of which Antioch shoppers must help to pay when they take their patronage from Antioch merchants—where it belongs—and carry it to the distant city.

All the stores in the city are not like the one described in the foregoing. Some are like the stores in Antioch, where honest prices are charged, where you get 100 percent in value and in service for every cent you spend there. But you don't go to those stores when you go on a shopping expedition to the city, because they are in the outlying sections, where conditions are more like those in your home town.

WHOSE RENT DO YOU PAY?

Are you helping to pay the rent of the big city stores? Are you contributing to the taxes, insurance, interest, employees' wages, and the hundreds of other expenses of the department stores or mail-order houses? Most surely you are if you are buying anything from them. Every dollar's worth of goods sold by such business houses must help pay these expenses. These costs are enormous and must be paid—and if you buy, you pay. Isn't it better economy to buy from the merchants of your own town? You pay less and get more, and your money stays where it will be invested for the good of Antioch.
